UC SANTA BARBARA

UC Santa Barbara has more than 9,100 employees and is the largest employer in Santa Barbara County. UC Santa Barbara's annual economic impact is over $239 million. Alumni and faculty members of the College of Engineering have started nearly 100 high-tech companies, about half of them located on California's Central Coast. UC Santa Barbara includes a School of Environmental Science Management and a Graduate School of Education. The more than 16,000 UC alumni in the area provide a highly skilled workforce for the region's growing technology sector.

UC AGRICULTURAL OUTREACH IN DISTRICT 24

UC's Division of Agriculture and Natural Resources Cooperative Extension provides comprehensive agricultural research information for local growers, ranchers, government and the larger community. UC county advisors provide hands-on assistance at the Ventura and Santa Barbara county offices. UC advisors in these offices work to engage 4-H youth in educational activities and provide growers with research-based information for pest and disease management.

THE CALIFORNIA NANOSYSTEMS INSTITUTE (CNSI)

CNSI will facilitate a public/private approach to developing the information, biomedical, and manufacturing technologies that will dominate science and the economy in the 21st century. The Institute will provide a world-class intellectual and physical environment that supports collaboration among California's university, industry and national laboratory scientists. The Institute will be housed at UCLA and UC Santa Barbara and will include corporate-sponsored incubator labs.
