

Over 10,000 strong

Since its creation, the federal Pell Grant has helped higher education become more accessible for students from all backgrounds. But disinvestment and inflation have reduced the grant's value and the current award does not meet students' needs.

In 1980, the maximum Pell Grant award covered more than 75% of the cost to attend a 4-year public university, but today it covers just 28%. This erosion of value — coupled with the financial instability brought on by the COVID-19 pandemic — has made higher education less attainable.

Doubling the Pell Grant will provide students greater access to financial aid. By reinvesting in this program, Congress can restore its commitment to ensuring that students have the financial support to access higher education.

We the 10,177 undersigned join with the University of California and the University of California Student Association in calling on Congress to restore the purchasing power of the Pell Grant by doubling its maximum award.
